Foreword to the Second Edition.

In view of the great demand for the first Edition, which quickly sold out, no time has been lost in preparing the second Edition, the special feature of which is the Index, reference to which should prove of great assistance to those desirous of ascertaining the Degree and University represented by any Hood, the colours of which are known prior to the reference being made. Some additions and a few alterations have been made, thus bringing the book up-to-date and in as complete a state as it is possible to present it.

Preface.

So many varieties of hoods are seen at Church, School and College at the present time that it has become no easy matter to determine what Degrees and Institutions are represented by them. Hence I have undertaken the somewhat formidable task of compiling statistics relative to Degrees and Hoods, and have aimed at making the contents of the following pages a real guide from which it should not prove too difficult a task to ascertain not only the degree possessed by the wearer of a hood, but also the University or College whence he or she graduated.

In the first place it should be explained that the hood had its origin in the tippet or shoulder-covering, worn by begging friars in the middle ages, and was so constructed as to form in addition to the tippet, a sort of bag or pocket in which alms or goods might be placed. Both characteristics are still retained in the various hoods worn to-day. They follow one or other of two shapes known respectively as the "Full" or "Cambridge" shape, and as the "Simple" or "Oxford" shape. The, former, when spread out, is an extraordinary looking article as indicated in the following diagram (1).

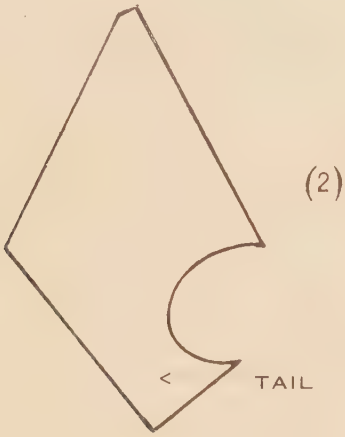
This is, of course, only half the hood which is formed of two pieces joined together at various points. The portion on the left of the dotted line is known as the tippet and lies nearest to the back, while that to the right, called the cowl, hangs down upon the tippet, thus showing the lining inside. The projection on the top left corner is the neck-band which is used for suspending the hood round the neck.

The "Simple" shape hoods are much less complicated as will be seen in the second diagram. This shows the hood spread out flat, and here again it is composed of two corresponding pieces like every other hood. The portion on the left lies nearest to the body and is really nothing more or less than an elongated cowl.



But these shapes have slight variations. Sometimes a "Full" shape hood has a rounded tippet, sometimes the liripoop or tail is shortened or absent entirely. Hoods in the "Simple" shape are frequently made in what is called the "split-salmon" cut, which shows a preponderance of lining, while in other cases and especially in the Bachelors' and Masters' hoods of Oxford, a very common variation is known as the "Burgon" cut, so called because the celebrated Dean of that name made himself responsible for re-introducing a mediæval type of hood long laid aside.

It is unfortunately a fact that in some instances one hood appears to be very like another belonging to quite a different Institution. There is, however, often some small difference as in the case of the B.A. Durham hood which differs from that of the Cambridge B.A., in that the base of the former is rounded while the Cambridge B.A. hood has a rectangular base. In the same manner, a Cambridge M.A. hood can be distinguished from an M.A. of Aberdeen by the fact that the latter has a rounded base. The case of the black hood lined with crimson (Simple shape) presents a real difficulty as it may represent not only an M.A. of Oxford, but also the same degree in the University of New Brunswick, King's College Windsor, Nova Scotia, and Dalhousie University amongst others. It should, however, not be overlooked that such a hood is far more likely to intimate that the wearer is an Oxford M.A. than an M.A. of one of the Colonial Institutions mentioned, since, in this country, the latter is comparatively seldom seen.

I have endeavoured to give a list of the hoods now worn by the graduates of the Universities and Colleges and by the students of Theological Colleges, etc., but in any instance where the particulars may prove to be slightly inexact, I must ask to be excused from taking the responsibility of the error, in consequence of some vague and uncertain answers to my enquiries.

It should be stated, as far as present information goes, that no degrees are sold by any College in the United States of America, however small, as is sometimes thought to be the case in England where the American College system is but little understood. It is said that spurious degrees were sold quietly some years ago by a "representative" in England, but as soon as the matter became public, the Charter of the "University" was at once withdrawn while the "representative" was imprisoned.

Last, but not least, let me express my grateful thanks to the Secretaries and Registrars of Universities and Colleges in Great Britain, Ireland, the Colonies and America, together with Mr. Leonard of the well-known New York firm of Cotrell & Leonard, who have so kindly sent me information, and in some cases as well, copies of the College Calendars, Catalogues, or Bulletins as they are called in the United States. Without the aid of these officials, it would have been quite impossible to present this work in its present form. My thanks are also due to Dr. Kirkland-Whittaker of Banstead Downs, Surrey, and the Rev. W. J. J. Cornelius, D. Litt., of North Peckham, London, for valuable suggestions and helpful information.

Lambeth Degrees.

The Archbishop of Canterbury is empowered, by virtue of his office, to confer these degrees at his discretion. For the degree of M.A., Archbishop Tait instituted an examination, but degrees in Theology, Law and Music are conferred without examination as Honorary distinctions on persons eminent in those professions. The degrees granted or conferred are M.A., B.D., D.D., LL.D., and Mus.Doc.

By long established custom, the hoods for Lambeth degrees are identical with those prescribed for the same degrees at the University to which the Archbishop who confers the degrees belongs. When, however, the recipient is a University graduate, he wears the hood of his own University. For example, if the degree of D.D. be conferred on a Non-University man, he wears the hood of D.D. Oxford, providing the Archbishop himself be an Oxford man, but if an LL.D. degree be conferred upon a Cambridge M.A., the recipient wears the hood of a Doctor of Laws of his own University.

The Literate's Hood.

It has become the custom for certain clergy of the Anglican Church to wear a plain hood of black stuff, which is known as "The Literate's Hood." The hood is worn either by those holding no University degree or by those who come from a College which prescribes no distinctive hood for its members. Considerable latitude has obtained as to shape, and such a hood is seen as much in the Full shape as in the Simple. So far as I can ascertain, the matter of cost enters largely into the question of which shape the hood shall follow, since the Full shape hood is more costly than the other.

Theological and Missionary Colleges at home and abroad.

These Colleges were founded for the reception of those desiring to study prior to taking Orders in the Church of England. Both graduates and non-graduates are received and the length of residence for the former is generally one year and for the latter, from two to three years. All candidates who have not taken a degree are required to pass an Entrance Examination though special arrangements have been made for those lately serving with H.M. Forces, many hundreds of whom have already been ordained. Graduates are, as a rule, exempted from an Entrance Examination.

Below is given a list of the Theological and Missionary Colleges' with date of foundation and distinctive Hood, where approved.

Under the special sanction of the Archbishop of Canterbury dated March 7th, 1885, the hood must be conformable to the general pattern approved for Theological Colleges by the Upper House of Convocation of the Province of Canterbury on February 15th, 1882, thus cancelling the hood approved by the late Archbishop Sumner in March, 1862. This was made of black silk lined with mauve silk in the Simple shape. The hood in use between the years 1882 and 1909 was made of black poplin edged inside with 1 inch and outside with ¼ inch of mauve silk. Simple shape. Under the still further sanction of the Archbishop of Canterbury dated 1909, the hood was to |

Universities and Colleges in the United States of America.

INTRODUCTION.

Most of the American Universities and Colleges in the United States have adopted a "code" of hoods whereby recognition is easily gained as soon as the system has been mastered. Thus it possesses a great advantage over those hoods in use within the British Empire. In the United States there are over 600 degree-giving institutions most of which use what is called "The Inter-collegiate Code." This was prepared by Mr. Leonard of the firm of Cotrell & Leonard of Albany, New York, and the hoods are arranged as follows:—

The predominating colour of all hoods is black. Bachelors' and Masters' hoods are in the Simple shape while the Doctors' hoods are in the Full shape, the base of the hood in this latter shape being rounded. The colour or colours in the lining of the hood represents the University or College from which the wearer took his degree. Some hoods (e.g. Harvard, Yale, Chicago and New York) have but one colour in the lining, while others (e.g. Princeton, Pennsylvania and California) have also a chevron which is placed in the centre of the hood and is about 3 inches in width. The chevron was brought into use owing to the impossibility of finding one separate colour for each Institution. So far, then, we have a black hood lined with the colour or colours of the University or College. In addition to this each hood possesses a border upon the outside, the colour representing the faculty from which the wearer graduated. This border is 3 inches wide and is of either silk, satin or velvet; in most cases the material used is velvet. Below is given a list of the various faculties together with the colour of the border:—

|---|---|
| Arts and Letters ... ... ... ... | White |
| Theology and Divinity ... ... ... | Scarlet. |
| Law ... ... ... ... ... ... | Purple. |
| Philosophy ... ... ... ... ... | Blue. |
| Science ... .. ... ... ... | Gold Yellow. |
| Fine Arts ... ... ... ... ... | Brown. |

| Veterinary Science ... ... ... | Grey. |
| Library Science ... ... ... ... | Lemon. |
| Pedagogy ... ... ... ... ... | Light Blue. |
| Commerce and Accountancy ... ... | Drab. |

The lengths of the Hoods are:—

|---|---|
| Bachelors' .. ... | 3 feet. |
| Masters' ... ... | 3½ feet. |
| Doctors' ... .. | 4 feet. |

It should be noted that two doctorates are sometimes shown by dividing the border of the hood between two colours: the colours of but one Institution can be shown in one lining.

American College colours are now quite commonly seen especially since it has become the custom for Universities and Colleges to give to the recipients of their honorary degrees the correct hoods for such. At centennials and other great convocations, many are given to visiting delegates from American and other Universities and are carried and later worn in widely separated places thus serving to advertise, to an extent, the Institutions whose degrees are represented by the hoods.

In the following table is given a list of the Universities and Colleges in the United States together with the corresponding colours in the linings of the hoods:—

*"Carnelian" is a mineralogical term and refers to a translucent clear red variety of quartz or chalcedony. As the colour of the stone varies in shade, it is not a very definite term, but the hue lies somewhere between scarlet and crimson.

As there are two white chevrons in the hood of Cornell University, they are narrower that the ordinary chevron and are placed about 2 inches apart so that the colour of the lining shows between them as well as above and below.

German Degrees held by U.S.A. Professors and others in U.S.A.

German Universities do not hold convocations or public ceremonies when conferring degrees and do not prescribe nor use hoods. As, however, there are a large number of Professors in the United States of America and elsewhere holding German degrees in faculties where the inter-collegiate system is used, it has become the custom for them to use the hoods of their appropriate degrees and to line the hoods with the colours of the German University, placing upon the lining the German tri-chevron of black, white and red. This custom was inaugurated in 1895 at the University of Chicago by a conference of professors of German and other nationalities who were outfitting under the American system and who designated this symbolism to indicate the source of the degrees which represented so much of German modern research.

The German Universities are represented as follows:—

|---|---|
| University of Berlin ... | Black with purple lining and tri-chevron in centre. |
| University of Bonn ... | Black with white above black lining and tri-chevron in centre. |
| University of Freiburg | Black with dark green lining and tri-chevron in centre. |
| University of Göttingen | Black with yellow lining and tri-chevron in centre. |
| University of Halle ... | Black with white lining and tri-chevron in centre. |
| University of Heidelberg | Black with red lining and tri-chevron in centre. |
| University of Jena ... | Black with green above gold lining and tri-chevron in centre. |
| University of Leipsig ... | Black with green above white lining and tri-chevron in centre. |
| University of Munich ... | Black with light blue lining and tri-chevron in centre. |
| Royal Normal College, Munich | Black with blue lining with white panels at the sides and tri-chevron in centre. |

Amongst the Universities and Colleges which have not, so far, exclusively conformed to the "inter-collegiate code," are the following which prescribe hoods whose colour-combinations are based on the British and Colonial pattern.

Trinity College, Hartford, Conn.

(FOUNDED 1801.)

All hoods of this College are Simple shape excepting the hood for D.D. which is Full. The present colours have been in force since the year 1894. It may be noted here that professors possessing degrees from other Universities are entitled to wear hoods as if the degrees had been granted by this College.

French Degrees and Scarves.

The Universities in France while granting degrees and diplomas, do not prescribe nor use hoods. Coloured Scarves, however, are in general use and are worn over the shoulder upon a black gown, the broader portion hanging a short way down the back and the narrower part to about the groin. Each University has a distinctive colour. Doctors' Scarves have three rows of ermin at each end, Licentiates' have two rows and Bachelors' Scarves have only one row of ermin at each end. For example, Licentiates in Letters or Arts of the University of Paris wear an orange scarf with two rows of ermln at each end of the scarf.

The M.D. Degree of Brussels.

Owing to the fact that a number of British Physicians and Surgeons hold this degree, a hood of scarlet cloth lined with bright blue silk in the Full shape, has been prescribed for their use when required.

*Prior to 1922 the B.D. hood was of purple stuff lined with white silk.

The Degrees and Hoods of Göttingen University.

In view of certain among the Clerical, Legal and Medical professions in this country holding Doctors' degrees at this University, the authorities issued in 1868 their sanction for hoods to be worn as follows :

Supplement containing Index to Colours.

This Supplement has been added for the convenience of those who find a difficulty in determining the degree and University or College represented by any hood.

Such information may be speedily ascertained by consulting the pages following. For example, a "Simple" shape hood of black lined with pale red can be at once identified as representing M.Sc. Victoria University, Manchester, by turning to the heading "Black Lined" and noting the degree shown alongside the lining colour.

In some cases, it will be necessary to refer to the foregoing pages for fuller details and descriptions of certain hoods.
